The Travel Agent program (AEC) is designed for students who are passionate about selling dreams and dedicated to researching exciting destinations that meet the client's expectations.

Therefore, this program trains tourism professionals to analyze international destination products and services and create and modify promotional packages to effectively respond to the demands of a target clientele.

This high-quality training provides students with the knowledge and skills needed to master the procedures involved in preparing and selling a tailor-made package. In addition, many partnerships in the industry – particularly with the Association of Canadian Travel Agencies (ACTA) and the World Tourism Organization – provide a training that is directly linked to the job market.
